

Disclaimer

This website is for general informational and educational purposes only and is not intended to replace legal, medical, psychiatric, psychological, nutritional or other advice from a licensed professional. Please consult with the appropriate licensed professional for your child. This website offers the views of the organization members, based on their own personal experiences dealing with autism spectrum disorders in their families. We hope you find this information beneficial. If you have any questions, please be sure to contact us at info@autismresourcemom.org and we will be glad to help.